

New World Trade Center PATH train platform opens

File photo of commuters boarding a PATH train at Exchange Place in Jersey City for the World Trade Center PATH station.
KEVIN R.WEXLER/ STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

NEW YORK — The Port Authority has opened a new PATH train platform at the World Trade Center.

The new modernized platform will become part of the $4 billion trade center transportation hub.

The transportation hub will open in phases through 2015.

The new platform serves travelers headed from lower Manhattan to Hoboken, N.J.