

Festive lights to adorn One World Trade Center for holiday season

Published: Tuesday, December 13, 2011, 4:30 PM

By Summer Dawn Hortillosa / The Jersey Journal

Courtesy of Port Authority One World Trade Center will be lit up for the holidays.

Tonight, One World Trade Center will be aglow with the holiday spirit!

The tower will be adorned with festive colored lights to mark the upcoming holiday season, Port Authority officials said.

Construction workers from Five Star Electric - the tower's electrical contractor - volunteered their time to place colored cellophane wrapping around the existing interior lights to create the holiday look.

One World Trade Center - which can now be seen from points in all five New York City boroughs and in New Jersey - has reached the 90th floor, leaving 14 floors remaining.

The tower's glass façade has reached the 65th floor and the concrete floors have been built to the 82nd floor.

The building steel is scheduled to top out in the first quarter of 2012, and the building is scheduled for completion by the end of 2013. Approximately half of the tower's 3 million square feet of office space has been leased.